What Kind of House is Your House?

There are many kinds of dwellings. Of God's people long ago, it was said, many dwelt "in dens and caves of the earth" (Heb. 11:38). Their persecutors would not allow them to live in any settled state. By contrast, when Paul and his company came up to Jerusalem, they were cared for in the house of "Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we should stay" (Acts 21:16, (Hugo McCord's translation). To care well for such a group required adequate housing. But there is a special emphasis in Proverbs 3:33; "The curse of the Lord is in the house of the wicked, but he blessed the habitation of the just."

You will not have to visit many homes to see this text verified, sadly or gloriously. What a pleasure to be in the dwelling of a just man! He will likely have good neighbors, for a life of justice produces effects on those among whom we live. His family will probably be respected in the community, for he communicates his manner of life to them.

My house is blessed with memories left by many godly brothers and sisters who have visited here. They leave an aroma of godliness behind them. If your dwelling place is a small apartment, a city mansion, a country villa, or a bungalow in a little town, that is of small significance. The real question is; is your habitation that of a just person? If it is not, remedy that lack by committing yourself, your possessions, your life and your habitation to the Lord. You will be one more blessed man if you do.
